Archival Collections of Materials

Appalshop Archives in Whitesburg, KY house video, digital photo, print and research materials from the production of Anne Braden: Southern Patriot.

Dr. Catherine Fosl's interviews form the Anne Braden Oral History Collection at the Louis B. Nunn Center for Oral History at the University of Kentucky Library. The University of Louisville Oral History Collection also contains interviews with Braden.

University of Louisville Archives and Records Center houses the Anne Braden Papers 1920s-2006. This collection was formed after Braden's death and contains materials related to or collected by Braden from early childhood until her death in 2006. These papers take the form of correspondence, booklets and flyers, manuscripts, syllabi, audio and video tapes, and photographs. Included in the personal materials are scrapbooks, yearbooks, and diaries.

The Carl and Anne Braden Papers 1928-2006 at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin is the largest holding of materials by and about the Bradens, primarily documenting their work with the Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF) 1954-1974, and the Southern Organizing Committee for Economic and Social Justice (SOC), 1974-2006. The collection has large holdings of sound recordings and photographs as well.

The State Historical Society of Wisconsin's Social Action Collection also has extensive holdings of records and documents of individuals and organizations that intersected with Anne Braden's work and organizing experiences.

There are also collections of Carl and Anne Braden Papers in Special Collections and Archives, M.I. King Library, University of Kentucky, and Special Collections, Hoskins Library, University of Tennessee. Louisville's Courier-Journal has an extensive photo archive containing prints of the Bradens starting in the era of the Wade Case.

The Kentucky Civil Rights Oral History Project is a project of the Kentucky Historical Society and includes interviews with Anne Braden as well as many others active in the civil rights movement in the state.

The Birmingham Public Library and the Birmingham Civil Rights Institute are important sources for photographs and film that illustrate Braden's childhood in Alabama and the significant civil rights events taking place there.

Many State Archives and universities throughout the South contain some material related to the Bradens and have photographic and audio-visual material of the larger civil rights movement.
